Dogging Indicator – DI

Security Solutions that are visibly better

Peace of mind knowing your door wasn't left dogged...

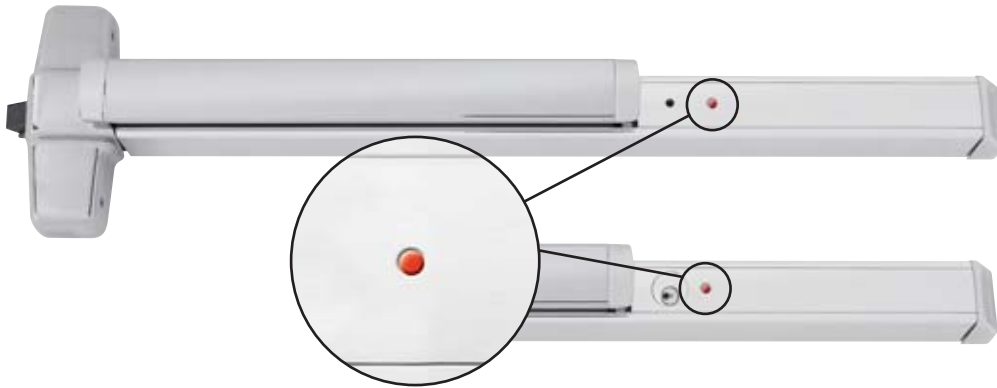

Knowing whether an exit device has been dogged is the first step in building security. Without a centralized monitoring system, every door should be physically checked. The Von Duprin Dogging Indicator is simple, easy, and cost effective way to determine the exit device's status. The dogging indicator light can be seen from over 75' away and requires no external power source for its operation. This provides a quick visual indication of the device's dogging status, for a whole lot less than an expensive centralized monitoring system.

Protect your building's security and insure your peace of mind by adding the Von Duprin Dogging Indicator to your exit device openings. Von Duprin...a visibly better idea.
